ERADICATE PEST BY CROP CHANGE EXPERTS ADVISE

Aid To Truck Farming In Talks By Members of Station's Staff

BROWN CO. FARMERS MAKE CONTRIBUTIONS

Celery Promising Crop For Everglades But Caution Is Advised

Phases of truck farming were treated at the Farmers' Meeting in talks by H. H. Wedgworth of Everglades Experiment Station on "Plant Disease Situation in Relation To Truck Farming," followed by A. Frank of Brown Company Farms, and by R. N. Lobell of the Station on "Prominent Insect Pests of Truck Crops Encountered During the Past Year," and G. W. McClelland of Brown Company Farms on "Celery Production in the Everglades Area."

Tests in celery growing at Everglades Experiment Station last year increased the interest in the crop and the talk on celery was put on the program in response to that interest.

In his talk, given earlier, Mr. Frank told of diseases of celery encountered in the intensive trial and the precautions being taken to prevent their recurrence.

Mr. McClelland described his manner of making seed beds and their care and the proper way to transfer the seedlings to the field and the subsequent methods. His talk was technical but created such interest that the questions and answers in the evening discussion had him speaking from his seat in the body of the house longer than had been talked from the platform. Mr. McClelland thought the Glades an excellent place for celery but he warned that it taken a good deal of money to put a crop through and that unless the grower was prepared to take some losses while he was getting experience he had better lay off of celery. An advantage in the Everglades is that plants can be grown the year round and the crop harvested from December to June. Blight and cutworms were the only disease and pest and he spoke lightly of them. Mr. McClelland is originally from Sanford and has been in celery production all his life.

H. H. Wedgworth, talking of plant diseases, used a diagram that helped put his meaning across. He said, he is not seed-borne; if it is an infectious virus it is in the soil and is likely to be communicated to cultivated crops from weeds on which the virus is found. Its eradication is accomplished by clean cultivation and roguing.

For plant diseases in general crop rotation was recommended, two or three years being desirable as a period before replanting land on which there had been disease. Production of large vegetables as a relief from beans, peppers and eggplants offered a means of making use of land in a crop rotation system. In the summer cowpeas and velvet beans should be grown. Mr. J. C. Stapler, Harry Sheppard, Bob Joe Sanders and Ned Perkins spent several days in Kissimmee last week.

C. S. Moore has returned after spending the summer in Asheville, N. C.

Mrs. J. C. Stapler has as her guest this week her mother, Mrs. N. C. Stapler. Mrs. Stapler is a little field to soften the skin. Next she brings into operation a sharp-pointed saw with which she proceeds to make a hole. The sawing is done in the new to cut easily so easily that you don't feel her at work. When the hole is made she inserts a miniature sawblade into it and through it she saws the rest of the body.

It is the softening fluid which causes the subsequent irritation. Scratch the place, and you cause it to swell, making matters worse. In fact there is always the danger of introducing microbes into the hole. The sawing is done in the new to cut easily so easily that you don't feel her at work. Byron's Pet Goose

Byron, though he sneered at many other British institutions, seems to have retained a truly John-Bullian hankering after roast goose. He has been in the habit of eating a roasted goose every Sunday in Venice, the place he sought a year ago in August with the idea of hunting for a bird of the same name.

September 20, Sentiment, however, the bird became so attached that when Michaelmas arrived he could not resist the thought of killing it. He bought another bird for his table, and had a goose made for the pet goose, which he suspended under his carriage when he traveled.

OLD SWINDLE IS IN A NEW GUISE

'Spanish Prisoner' Racket Transferred To South America By Form Letter Writers

The fame of Pahokee has spread to remote Argentine Republic in South America, and someone in the capital city of Buenos Aires has a light on which is the name of V. C. Denton, a well-known dealer in the United States.

The swindler in Argentine says he has money enough to risk the gamble. It is the old Spanish prisoner swindle in a new form.

The swindler in Argentine says he is in bankruptcy and needs money to get a discharge from the courts. If Denton will help him pay the bankruptcy court expenses he will give him a third of the money.

United States. The letter explains the United States. The letter explains the United States. The letter explains the United States.

The letter is clever, for it tempts the human weakness of trying to get something for nothing. It is an air of mystery that appeals to many persons. It is surprising is evident on analysis for if the bankrupt Argentinian has $350,000 cash on deposit in banks in the United States, the proper thing for him to do would be to draw the money and pay the court judgment.

In an earlier form the swindle was used in Spain, the letter writer representing himself as a prisoner for a political offense and not having anyone in Spain he can turn to draw the proper thing for him to do would be to draw the money and pay the court judgment.

No "Gee" Nor "Haw"

Near Tiontown there is a little Indian boy named Numpkin but uneducated.

A hundred years ago the remnant of the Indians tribe living in the vicinity gave up its ancestral land to the white settlers. The Indians except their burial plot. Their friends should never "gee" nor "haw" his horses in it. This agreement, with its quaint terminology, may be found in the Boone county records today.—Indianapolis News.

SOUTH BAY, Sept. 1.—Prospective farmers of the upper Everglades are evidently of the opinion that the bottom has been reached in the financial depression and that this winter will show an upward trend toward normal conditions. Attitude is shown in their plans for larger acreages and deeper crops. The most up-to-date machinery available is being purchased as a means to this end. The International Harvester Company has been the new tractor layer for this tract, put out by the International Harvester Company of America. This "Trac-Trac-Trac" has been released only a short time, and T. H. Monk of the Miami Press received his first one about a week ago. It is the "fast pusher" being sold by Shuman Brothers, who may become the owners of the first tractor of the new type in south Florida.

J. A. Baker of Boynton, a tomato packing house foreman, came up this week to attend the Farmers meeting at the high school auditorium. He called on his brother Q. Baker and his friend O. A. Ward of Pahokee.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Frierson of Moore Haven attended the Farmers' Meeting. He is a member of the board of county commissioners and a supervisor of Diston Island drainage district and runs a nursery as well as a truck farm.
